just the top paired with jeans for a night out on the town."

By Angela Lopez, Free Press staff writer

How she describes her style: "Confident, charismatic, cool, chic, couture, fun. Definitely a hybrid of classic and trendy."

Why style is important: "First, it allows me to set myself apart from the rest. I've always attempted to present myself in a manner that was both engaging and aesthetically pleasing. Second, style allows me to celebrate my individuality."

Signature style: Hats and head wraps. "Chances are if you see me, I'm donning one or the other."

Best fashion find ever: "The outfit that I wore to my daughter's wedding (pictured). I stop short of calling it a 'mother of the bride' dress. It simply has too much style to fall into that category. I definitely will wear it again, as a suit to a formal charity event or

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION

Indigo's best advice:

- "Looking stylish is not about following fashion trends; it's about understanding what styles work best for your body type and sticking to them no matter what fashion tries to dictate."
- "Find a good tailor. Perfectly fitting -- not necessarily expensive -- clothes are the definition of true chic."

You guys have tapped into an area that a lot of people have yet to be exposed. This lady is a pioneer in her field, so don't take this wonderful person lightly. She is one of the people I look to in this city for style pointers and if she approves it, I go with it.
